78TH ANNUAL THEODOR LANG

OSF MAY DAY MEDICAL CONFERENCE

May Day Conference History

Theodor Lang, MD, a radiologist on staff at St. Anthony Hospital, founded the May Day Conference. The goal of the conference was to improve patient care by gathering physicians from the region under one tent for a day of education and fellowship. We no longer meet under a tent, but we still strive to improve patient care by bringing fellowship and medical education to our health care team. We are proud to continue the May Day Medical Conference as the second longest running medical conference in the United States.

Raymond E. Hoffmann Jr., MD, Memorial Lecture

"The Frustrations of Modern Corporate Medicine as Seen by a Urologist" is the 2017 Raymond E. Hoffmann Jr. MD, Memorial Lecture, in honor of Dr. Ray Hoffmann, a surgeon and leader at OSF Saint Anthony Medical Center who was instrumental in developing the OSF Northern Region's paramedic program. Dr. Hoffmann also served in multiple state and national positions, culminating in his election as the president of the Illinois State Medical Society. He was a remarkable mentor, role model, beloved physician and esteemed colleague. The memorial lecture this year will be delivered by his son, Nathan E. Hoffmann, MD.

The target audience for this conference is physicians, residents, medical students, allied health professionals, nursing staff and the ancillary medical team.

The May Day Medical Conference is designed to provide an educational environment for health care providers with a focus on identified practice gaps. Our goal is that this education will result in the improvement of quality of care, treatment, services, safety and outcomes for patients.

This conference may not be audited.
